Experiences with Author Tanya Talaga

REV. DR. STEPHEN LARSON

This month, Pastor Tanya is pleased to turn over the Pastor's Newsletter to Pastor Stephen Larson, who shares with us a meaningful learning opportunity he experienced with author Tanya Talaga.

On November 25th Tanya Talaga gave The Canada Lecture on Citizenship at the Kitchener Public Library and stood before its packed auditorium as something of a Truth and Reconciliation (TRC) prophet.

Like Isaiah or Jeremiah, she began with lament and moved toward hope. She began by observing that ten years after the TRC report and its "Calls to Action," very few of those calls have been answered or even attempted. She eloquently wondered why as she described the decade of minimal action.

A gifted speaker, Tanya Talaga, is a uniquely qualified TRC prophet for she is something of a "TRC Dual Citizen" with an Indigenous Ojibwe mother and a Settler Polish father.

She is also a very gifted writer — for two decades she was a journalist with the Toronto Star and now is a columnist for The Globe and Mail. She is also the author of three award winning books.

Her first book, Seven Fallen Feathers: Racism, Death and Hard Truths in a Northern City, was published in 2017 and told the story of seven Indigenous youth from northern Ontario First Nations who traveled to Thunder Bay for high school and met their death either through accident or homicide — the local police were never overly interested in the differences in those cases. One of the youth was the grandson of the well known artist, Norval Morrisseau.

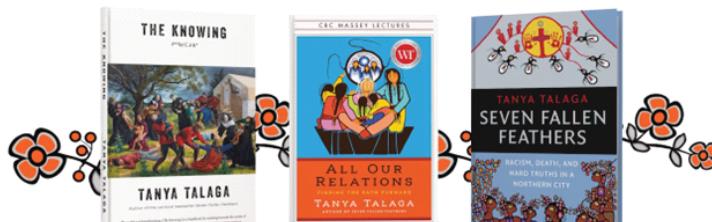

Her book won the 2018 RBC Taylor Prize for non-fiction and the 2017 Shughnessy Cohen Prize for Political Writing.

Her second book, All Our Relations: Finding the Path Forward, was published in 2018, as the byproduct of her 2018 CBC Massey Lectures — the first woman of Anishinaabe descent to present a CBC Massey Lecture series.

But it's her third book, The Knowing, that is most astonishing. For in the course of her research and writing, she was accompanied throughout by a documentary film crew that recorded her journey and interviews, her lamentations and hopes as she sought to find the unmarked grave of her maternal great-great grandmother, Annie Carpenter. That documentary is available on CBC Gem.

Her grave quest leads through her great-grandmother, Liz Gauthier's, childhood and experience as a residential school survivor.

Tanya Talaga's books can be found in Trintiy's Indigenous Resource Library

"The Knowing" is a term that refers to the knowledge of unmarked graves in proximity to residential schools in Canada. As you read, or watch the documentary, you'll follow Tanya in her grave quest to the unmarked graves at the residential school in Kamloops, to her ancestors' homes and migration routes in northern Ontario and James Bay area.

Through the book you'll encounter another perspective on Canadian history — a history not often found in other Canadian history books written from a settler viewpoint. It should be required reading in high schools, churches and universities.

You'll encounter her poignant observations as she travels as a journalist with the First Nations delegation to the Vatican as they appeal for a papal apology and witness her shock when the Vatican museum unpacks and displays Canadian First Nations' artifacts held in their museum. In her shock, she phones an elder back in Canada to explain what is happening and the elder advises her to speak to the artifacts in their native language! At which point, Vatican officials escorted her out of the museum.

Pope Leo XIV recently announced that some of those artifacts would be returned to Canadian First Nations in early December 2025. I can't wait to read Tanya's reporting on that recovery of Indigenous spiritual and artistic history!

As you read, you'll also follow Pope Francis' apology tour in Canada as Tanya accompanies the Pope's entourage among the journalists on that papal pilgrimage.

It's not much of a spoiler alert to share that after all those months of travel and research, writing and filming, she does find her Great-Great Grandmother Annie's resting place in a hospital cemetery's unmarked grave just across the Gardiner Expressway from the IKEA store in Toronto.

It's the first sentence of chapter 1.

Concurrent with her work on The Knowing, Tanya founded an artistic collective called Makwa Creative, (makwacreative.ca) The collective is creating and curating films, podcasts and other resources of Indigenous history on Turtle Island.

I've become a huge Tanya Talaga fan. Since that first 2017 unanswered invitation, I've had an opportunity for brief conversations with her three times after her recent K-W presentations, while asking her to autograph copies of her books.

I can't recommend her writing and presentations highly enough.

At her Kitchener Public Library presentation on November 25th she began by sharing her remembrance of being in that library auditorium in 2017 to talk about that first book. Only her children and a couple other people showed up.

Don't miss her when she's next in K-W.

*Receipts and expenses for Major Capital Expenditures through December 31st, 2025.
The General Reserve Fund is being used to finance the deficit from Major Capital*

The month of January has been an extremely busy one for the finance and administration folks at Trinity. Closing the financial books on 2025 and preparing our 2026 budget within tight time frames has been challenging and rewarding work.

It's a true pleasure to report that we finished the year with a significant surplus in the General Fund. At the end of summer, we were in a deep deficit position and it seemed like the trend would continue. Thanks to the unfailing generosity of the Trinity Community, we received some very large gifts in September and December, along with an upward trend in donations in general through the last quarter of 2025.

General Fund expenses came in slightly under budget, which further helped our surplus for the year. It's been difficult for the staff and Council to keep expenses in line while so many costs are increasing. For example, winter maintenance cost $10,485 and the budget was $5,500! Savings from not fully staffing the youth and visitation ministries, and the improved efficiency of our Major Capital investments are significant contributors to keeping overall expenses under budget.

The Capital Fund finished the year with a small deficit, just $500 worse than we had budgeted. However, there was a large carryover from 2024 in Capital, so we are well covered.

Please reflect on your financial stewardship goal for 2026. If you have the capacity to consider an increase in your goal for 2026, your gifts will be used wisely to extend Trinity's mission and ministry into the future.

Detailed information about Trinity's finances will be available in the Annual Reports on February 8th. 2026 budget discussion and approval follows at the Annual Meeting on February 22nd.

Reconciling in Christ

Since 1983, the Reconciling in Christ program has been a public way for faith communities to see, name, celebrate, and advocate for people of all sexual orientations, gender identities, and gender expressions in the Lutheran church. Since 2001, the work has expanded to include racial equity and a commitment to anti-racist work.
